

ACTech helps – Christmas donation for Parents' Aid for Children with Cancer Leipzig

This year, our colleagues at ACTech have chosen a project close to their hearts to receive the ACTech Christmas donation: Elternhilfe für krebskranke Kinder Leipzig e.V. (Parents' Aid for Children with Cancer Leipzig) will receive a donation of Euro 5,000!

For more than 30 years, the association has been supporting families whose children have cancer with therapies, art and music programs, and additional support for parents and siblings. This is a valuable contribution to helping families through this difficult time. The goal of Elternhilfe für krebskranke Kinder Leipzig is to permanently and sustainably improve the situation for children, adolescents, and young adults with cancer, as well as their families, in the Leipzig area.

“We promote the provision of psychosocial support, counseling, and care for families with a child, adolescent, or young adult with cancer in outpatient and inpatient settings.”

On St. Nicholas Day, the time had come: Ms. Paarmann from Elternhilfe accepted the check and told us about the challenges of everyday life at the clinic. The money goes directly to therapies and supports the children affected and their families.

We are proud to support this great project!
